“Before I knew about PIN, I felt totally isolated, like I had no one to talk to about my son’s problems. PIN gave me the help and support I really needed. They helped me work with his school to get an IEP in place, and my son was finally able to succeed and graduate from high school.”

PARENT INFORMATION NETWORK

The Parent Information Network (PIN) is a parent information and support program designed by parents and professionals to help families of children and young adults ages 5-25 with serious emotional, behavioral, and/or mental health challenges. Its mission is to empower families and assist them in navigating the system and accessing the supports and services necessary to maintain their child within the community. PIN services are confidential and free of charge.

PIN helps parents and caregivers stay connected with other parents to help reduce the stress and isolation many feel as they cope with raising a child with mental health needs. The program is staffed by trained Parent Coordinators (PCs) who have faced similar challenges parenting their own children.

PARENTS OF TRANSITIONAL AGE YOUTH (PTAY)

The Parents of Transitional Age Youth (PTAY) program is designed to help families guide young adults ages 14-25 with behavioral, emotional, or mental health needs through the transition to adulthood. Our goal is to help families gain a sense of confidence in guiding their youth through this process, as well as to empower families by providing them with information, education, and resources which will help them to advocate for supports and services for their young adult.

Support groups are held monthly to give parents the opportunity to come together to support each other and share ideas and information. PTAY parents are assisted through one-on-one support with the PTAY Coordinator. PTAY workshops educate and heighten the awareness of parents, professionals, and community members about the struggles many families face as they seek to guide their young adult to independence. Some of the topics covered include housing, education, transportation, social skills, and independent living. Additional information is available through the PTAY website (www.tayatpin.org) and Resource Center.
